

Bad news is a gift.

The bad news that reaches you fast saves you. The bad news that reaches you late costs you. Companies that punish the messenger end up with leadership teams that are the last to know.

We deliver bad news up the chain, not sideways. If you are reporting something broken, you are doing the work. The person who hid it for a quarter is the problem.

| We want the first email, not the polished one.

