

People to problem. Not people to box.

The most important question in this company is not who reports to whom. It is who is closest to the problem.

The person with the most context, the most stake, and the most ability to act should be sitting on top of the work. Sometimes that person is senior. Often they are not.

| Put the person, not the title, on the problem.

